

Gettysburg Soldiers Relate Experiences In North African Battle

With military censorship partially lifted after the rout of the Axis armies in North Africa two Gettysburg soldiers today revealed interesting stories of their part in the great Tunisian campaign in letters addressed home.

Sergeant G. Noel Flynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Flynn, Baltimore street, attached to a Medical Battalion, and Sergeant M. E. Zinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zinn, Hanover street, attached to a Field Artillery Service Battalion, relate highlights of their experiences in that battle, each from a different viewpoint.

Their letters follow:

By SERGEANT FLYNN

"Suppose we start from the very beginning. Remember the last night at the Gap? Well, two days later we left there and the day following we sailed for England. The trip was uneventful and of course we landed in England.

"I am not permitted to tell you how long we were on the water nor where we docked in England. I believe I can tell you we were located near the town of Swinden while we were there. I have told you of my visits to London, Bath, etc. We had expected to remain in England until the much talked of invasion took place, so when we were told that we were in for another boat ride we were quite surprised and had no idea where we were going. In all we spent slightly more than two months in jolly old England.

Beautiful Scotland

"Finally the day of our departure arrived and we boarded a train. That ride I will never forget. First through parts of England and then through Scotland which certainly is blessed with beautiful sights and scenery. Our train ride was concluded when we arrived at a port in Scotland. There we boarded the boat which was to bring us to Africa.

"It was not long until we were on our way. We heard many rumors as to where we were going but we were not positive until the ship's radio told us that North Africa was being invaded by American forces. We were then issued a booklet telling us all about North Africa, its people and customs.

"No, we were not part of the invading force but we were not far behind. We landed at Mers el Kebir (near Oran) the evening that the armistice was signed with the French officials at Oran. The next day we left the boat and began to hike. We were warned about snipers and I suppose all of us had our eyes open and fingers crossed as we started on our way. Now we were able to get our first glimpse of the Arabs and French natives.

"V for Victory"

"We got a nice reception and the 'V for Victory' sign was a common sight, perhaps all didn't mean it but what else could they do. We walked a mere 16 miles through rain and heat and when we reached our destination I for one was very tired. "The ground was our bed and since then mother earth has been our bed continuously. When day-break arrived we discovered we were directly across from an airport which had been given a pretty rough going over by the Allied air force. Damaged planes were everywhere and we also got our first glimpse of tanks, armored cars and other vehicles which had been hit in the fighting. We also learned that we should have stopped in the city of Oran so we began our march back to that city. It was in the city of Oran in Algeria, a city of about 200,000 population, that we were to be located for the next two months. At first there was a shortage of pure drinking water and also of food. We had our 'C' rations which we carried with us and we lived on these for several days.

Solve Problems

"However, soon the water and food problems were solved and we began a very enjoyable stay. Each week we received one day passes and all of us took advantage of this opportunity to get away from camp and enjoy the beer, champagne and vins (wine). The pictures which I sent were taken during my stay in Oran. I enjoyed my stay in that city very much but of course we knew that we were not to remain there for there was still fighting in Tunisia.

"So on the 12th of January we left Oran and once again were on our way. We conveyed by truck across Algiers over its winding roads and through the famous city of Constantine. After about five days on the road we reached our destination which was just outside the town of Tebessa. All these towns I have mentioned are in Algeria.

Separate Platoons

"We were now near the front lines and the numerous necessary precautions of war, such as blackout and camouflage had to be observed. Observing these were to become routine with us in the days that followed. Here we also dug our first fox holes and every soldier who has been in action certainly knows how important they are. Every time we changed our location digging these was one of the first things that we would do.

By SERGEANT ZINN

"We left the pier in New York on January 14, and except for sighting one submarine and having the engine break down on the ship and falling out of convoy for one day had an uneventful but pleasant trip across.

"We landed in Casablanca January 25 at 11:50 p. m. and went to a bivouac on a hill just out of town. We stayed there a few days, then took a train for 'Port Lyantey' where we joined the rest of our outfit. We were outfitted with trucks there for a road march so we spent some time servicing them and getting them ready. I, of course, did a bit of road testing and seeing a bit of the surrounding country.

At 5 a. m. on February 9, we started our trip. We had to shuttle the doughboys so we were a wee bit crowded at times. Even the wrecker which I drive most of the time was hauling a few of the fellows.

649-Mile Drive

"The first day out we drove 185 miles through some beautiful country. We stayed that night in the mountains. The next day we hit barren desert country and traveled 133 miles through that. The next day we traveled 186 lovely miles to bivouac just a few miles outside of Oran. We lay over a day there to rest and service the trucks. I, of course, took the gas run and took in the city of Oran which is grand. It's like the average big city in the States except where we have colored people they have Arabs. Arabs are filthy, but the French are pretty clean.

"We then started shuttling the infantry and that slowed us up somewhat. The first day we traveled just 30 miles; the next day 37 miles; the next, 35; the next, 43. We bivouacked near Orentenville. I have a great story to tell you about that town when I get home. Our next move was 65 miles over the mountains, it was so cold. We stayed there while the trucks went back over the same mountains to get the doughboys. The town we were near that night was bombed. So we saw our first action.

Learn Lesson

"There was some humor connected to that night's escapade. We were told to dig fox holes the first thing each night as soon as we stopped. No one figured on seeing any action so each night more and more of the boys got brave and didn't dig any. The bombing started at 3 a. m. and the ones of us who had been digging fox holes nearly died laughing. The boys nearly gave our position away with sparks jumping off rocks from their picks and shovels. They couldn't dig them fast or deep enough. From then on, the boys dug fox holes each night.

"The next day we had gone just 26 miles when suddenly we left the infantry sit by the side of the road and went 100 miles more and didn't go back for them. The following day we covered 151 miles and stopped again in the mountains.

"I'll explain a little of Africa. The terrain is funny. One day we would travel in perfectly flat, dry, barren desert, and the next day on the other side of a mountain we would hit the most gorgeous scenery of cork wood trees, orange groves, vineyards and farm land of all kinds. The change made the ride most enjoyable and I never tired of it, although I sure slept good nights when we stopped.

Truck Accident

"The following day changed my career as a soldier and was the beginning of a few sleepless nights. Of course things had been going too good, so I had to do something wrong.

"We started out this day and I was doing most of the driving because Joe had a headache. On a curve in the mountains one of our trucks had a collision with another truck and knocked the front of the boggle axle off. Until we took the axle out, strapped the rear end up and towed the other truck off the road, our convoy had gotten miles ahead. We started out but our progress was hindered because of the bad truck. We hadn't traveled far before another truck of a different outfit in our division stopped us and asked for a rear wheel bearing. They hadn't stopped our parts truck so we had to catch up and then send it back. Of course, till we caught up, we had traveled a few miles and it was getting dark so they sent the part back in the jeep and because of the darkness, they sent Joe along to keep the driver company, leaving me all alone in the wrecker.

Narrow Escape

"We hadn't gone much farther until it started to rain, and it was so dark I couldn't see to the end (Please Turn to Page 3)

MAJOR R. RABY, COLLEGE GRAD, DIES IN CRASH

Major Robert T. Raby, 25, son of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence L. S. Raby, of Philadelphia, and a graduate of Gettysburg college, was killed when the training plane he was piloting crashed at Fort Lauderdale Naval Air Station, Florida, Thursday. Two Navy enlisted men who were passengers aboard Raby's ship also were killed.

Major Raby graduated from Gettysburg college in 1940 and was a cadet officer in the Reserve Officers Training Corps from which he was commissioned into the Infantry upon graduation.

Joins Marine Corps

Because of his proficiency and high standing he was selected from his group to take a course in the Marine Corps from which he was commissioned a lieutenant. Later he was promoted to first lieutenant and assigned to recruiting duty in this area. He visited his alma mater in that connection on several occasions.

Major Raby served in the South Pacific area for some time and then was transferred to a California Marine base where he served as an instructor. Later he was sent to Fort Lauderdale where he received his wings. His promotion in the Marine Corps was rapid, advancing to the grade of major in three years.

He was a classmate at Gettysburg college of Captain Theodore Englehart, of Myersdale, Pa., who was accidentally killed by a machine gun bullet at Fort Benning, Ga., several days ago.

Major Raby was a member of the football and track teams, the rifle team, the Scabbard and Blade society, the ATO fraternity and the SCA while at college.

Visibly shocked when advised of Major Raby's death, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the college, made this statement:

Memorial Services

"Major Raby was a gentleman in every sense of the word. In character and ability to make and hold friends he left nothing to be desired. He was an ideal student of Gettysburg college. His loss will be felt for a long time."

Major Raby's father is a former president of the College Alumni association, a former well-known football and track official and at present is associate superintendent of schools in Philadelphia. Mrs. Raby is a teacher in the commercial department at Frankford high school.

The young flier was married to the former Miss Shirley Hoffman, of Washington, on May 17, 1942. He is survived by his father, one sister, Catherine and his widow.

Dr. and Mrs. Raby have gone to Fort Lauderdale to attend memorial services for their son today.

Other funeral arrangements have not been announced.

For one-half hour preceding the ceremony an organ and vocal recital will be rendered by J. Herbert Springer, of Hanover, and William Black, of Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland. Mr. Black will sing "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg, and "At Dawning" by Cadman. During the ceremony, "Oh Perfect Love" and "O Promise Me" will be played by Mr. Springer.

JOHN BURNS DAY TO BE OBSERVED

"John Burns Day" will be observed Sunday at the morning worship service, 10:30 o'clock, at the First Methodist church. In keeping with the patriotic spirit of the day, the service will be designed to honor this citizen soldier of Gettysburg who, after his battle experience, became a member of the local Methodist church.

The Rev. Paul L. Leedy, pastor, will speak on a theme appropriate to the occasion. In keeping with a practice established with the creation of the John Burns trust fund, the undesignated offering of the special service Sunday morning will be added to the fund.

The only other service of the day in the Methodist church will be the church school hour at 9:20 o'clock.

TOWN SOLEMN IN OBSERVING JULY FOURTH

Gettysburg and Adams county celebrating America's second war-time Fourth of July, of the second World war, settled down for a long weekend that will be marked this year by the absence of the usual fuss and bustle of ordinary times when the town played host to thousands of tourists from throughout the nation.

Many townspeople will continue to work straight through the two-day holiday, with few industries planning to halt work for the annual celebration of Independence day. Many of those who do have the Monday off as well as Sunday are planning to help out in the orchards of western Adams county during the free days.

No Holiday Spirit

There was little of the traditional holiday atmosphere to be felt about town this morning with gasoline rationing and travel restrictions preventing those who usually leave for trips to other sections from carrying out their plans.

Firecrackers and other noisemakers that have passed out of existence until victory were not missed in the town where for the past several years July Fourth regulations have banned the noisemakers.

Few parties were planned for the Fourth with relatives and friends who usually visited on the Independence day holiday unable to travel from their homes.

Guides who usually finished their work with a full quota of trips early in the day during the Fourth of July holiday period were not looking forward to a great amount of work over the forthcoming week-end.

Turns to Prayer

The town and county turned more to prayer than to gaiety in celebration of the holiday marking the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776 when America first made the break to found a nation devoted to freedom and liberty.

Countians paid tribute to the over 1600 men and women of the county who are in the armed services to fight for the same principles as were enunciated in the declaration.

Many of the stores of the county will be closed Monday in observance of the holiday. All of the banks and the county offices will also be closed. The Gettysburg post office will be closed Monday afternoon and there will be no rural deliveries during the day. There will be only one delivery in town Monday morning, according to Acting Postmaster Lawrence E. Oyler. Rotary will not meet Monday evening.

The Gettysburg Times, following its annual custom, will not publish on Monday.

USW SESSION IS ENDORCED

The Chamber of Commerce endorsed the holding of the 1944 convention of the Pennsylvania Department of the United Spanish War Veterans here next summer at a special meeting of the Chamber directors Friday afternoon. The special session was held to avoid meeting on the Fourth of July holiday, Monday, regularly scheduled time for the session.

The endorsement was given following reading of a letter from George Rightmyer, commander of the local USWV camp, notifying the directors that the state department had voted at a recent session in Gettysburg.

Membership meetings were cancelled for the remainder of the summer with the directors feeling that the weather is too hot for such affairs. The monthly membership dinner sessions will be resumed in September it was decided.

President Mares' Sherman presided with directors Edmund W. Thomas, Dr. J. Walter Coleman, A. E. Hutchison, Joseph E. Codori, Ralph Z. Oyler and Vernon B. Corle attending.

SELL COUNTY LOT

Australians And Americans Joined In Jungle Drive

By ROGER GREENE

The Associated Press

American and Australian troops threatened the big Japanese base at Salamaua, New Guinea, from three sides today after joining forces near the coast, and Allied vanguards were reported within sight of the enemy stronghold.

Dispatches said the Australians, cutting through the jungles to meet American troops who landed at Nassau bay on Wednesday, ran into Japanese positions but threw the enemy into such headlong flight that they were unable to regain contact.

Nassau bay is 12 miles below Salamaua.

Smashing At Munda

On the right flank of the 700-mile Allied offensive arc, U. S. troops were reported maintaining pressure on the Japanese air base at Munda, on New Georgia island in the central Solomons, details were lacking.

Curiously enough, despite the threat of Salamaua, there was no indication that the Japanese were sending reinforcements from their keystone base at Rabaul, New Britain, presumably because the enemy feared an attack on Rabaul itself.

Nor was there any sign of the Japanese fleet steaming forth to challenge the five-day-old Allied offensive.

On the European front, today was the Axis-heralded "Der Tag" for an Allied invasion, but for the second time in two weeks the enemy alarm appeared to have fizzled, and now the Italians, beginning to perk up, boasted in a Rome broadcast: "We are preparing for a 30 years' war."

From North African bases, American warplanes renewed the assault on Italy's island capitals of Palermo, Sicily, and Cagliari, Sardinia, and bombed the Castelvetrano airdrome in western Sicily.

On the Russian front, the long battleline cracked with perhaps the liveliest action in four months of stalemate.

Germans Fall Back

A Nazi broadcast admitted that German troops had "fallen back to strongly fortified new positions" near Dorobuzh, 50 miles east of Smolensk on the central (Moscow) front, and the Soviet command said the Red armies were continuing to pound enemy defenses before Smolensk.

Sharper fighting was also reported on the Leningrad front, west of Rostov and in the Caucasus.

A Berlin broadcast said German troops had beaten off a Soviet landing attempt near Novorossisk, siege-bound Black Sea naval base, after a heavy fight, while the Russians told of blasting German ships on both sides of Kerch Strait.

Nazi troops were reported concentrating across the strait, on the Crimea peninsula, indicating that the Germans might be preparing for a new thrust into the Caucasus.

Marines Land

In the southwest Pacific, delayed dispatches said camouflaged U. S. Marines landed on the main island of the New Georgia group an hour before dawn on Wednesday without opposition, establishing a beachhead for the drive on the Japanese air base at Munda.

Apparently taking the enemy by complete surprise, the Marines "didn't fire a shot and weren't fired on," said Tom Yarbrough, Associated Press correspondent.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters remained silent on the American conquest of Rendova Island, seven miles below Munda, and made a totally unsupported claim that 3,000 U. S. troops were killed in the first two days of fighting for the island.

By contrast, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that the Americans wiped out the Japanese garrison and suffered only light casualties themselves.

Tokyo's Boast

With its usual flair for exaggeration, the Tokyo command also asserted that "air mastery is firmly in Japanese hands"—ignoring an official Allied count of 123 Japanese planes shot down in the first two days of battle in the Rendova-New Georgia area against 15 U. S. planes lost.

American Flying Fortresses and Liberators continued to smash at Rabaul, dropping 33 tons of bombs on the enemy airdromes there for a three-night total of 78 tons, and other Allied planes shot up Japanese troops in New Guinea.

In the three-way drive on Salamaua, Allied troops were closing in from Nassau Bay, from Mubo eight miles inland, and from the northwest in the vicinity of Malolo.

Weather Forecast

Somewhat warmer today.

FAIRFIELD TO HOLD SPECIAL OUTDOOR SINGS

The first of a series of outdoor vespers to be presented by the Christian Endeavor societies of Fairfield will be held Sunday evening at 8 o'clock on the lawn in the rear of the Zion Lutheran church.

A community hymn sing with music provided by the Fairfield high school band will be featured.

Mrs. Charles Lott, president of the senior society, will preside with group singing being led by the Rev. Emmert Colestock.

The program will consist of group singing of the old familiar hymns of the church as well as several special numbers. Mrs. Donald Welkert and Miss Ruth Burkhard will sing a duet, "I Can Hear My Savior Calling." Mrs. Welkert will also sing a solo, "I love to Tell the Story."

Scripture will be read by Miss Barbara Henderson followed with prayer by the Rev. Harry Ecker, pastor of the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church.

Charles Lott, president of the Adams County Christian Endeavor Union, will give a short talk.

The public is invited to attend. The vespers services will continue through July.

LOCAL ATTORNEY GIVEN PROMOTION

Edward B. Bulleit, Esq., son of Attorney and Mrs. Eugene V. Bulleit, College avenue, and a former member of the law firm of Bulleit and Bulleit, has been promoted to first lieutenant in the Army Air Corps.

Lieutenant Bulleit has been in service about two years and rose from the ranks to the commission grade. He is now stationed somewhere in the south Pacific.

His brother, Thomas Bulleit, is attending an Officers' Candidate School at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Aviation Students Leave Local Base

A contingent of aviation students from the 55th College Training Detachment of the U. S. Air corps who have completed their training here left early this morning by train for an unannounced destination where they will continue their studies to become pilots, navigators or bombardiers.

Lt. John R. Manning was in charge of a detail of men who came here to escort the cadets to their new station. A number of cooks were with the detail and will take care of feeding the soldiers while enroute.

Yankees And Dodgers Face Crucial Holiday Twin Bills; Curtwright Stopped

INDIANS TALLY 12 IN FOURTH; SENATORS WIN

By TED MEIER
The Associated Press

The New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers stand at the crossroads today. What they do against the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals over the double-header jammed holiday week-end may well determine their final ranking in the American and National leagues.

Both clubs have looked bad in losing two in a row to the Cleveland Indians and Cincinnati Reds, respectively. The Indians yesterday humiliated the once proud Bronx Bombers by not only shutting them out 12 to 0, on Allie Reynolds' three-hit pitching, but by scoring all 12 runs in a terrific fourth inning outburst.

Such a manhandling has not happened to the Yankees in years. To top things off the Yanks lost the services of left fielder Charley Keller for an indefinite period. He was accidentally spiked on the left knee trying to steal second in the first inning. He was taken out and thus fortunately missed the harrowing details of the murderous fourth when 16 Indians batted. Nine of them singled, one doubled, three walked, one was safe on an error and the other two grounded out. The third out resulted when Ray Mack, who drove in four runs during the uprising, overran first after singling and was caught trying to get back.

Owen Errs

The Dodgers, who muffed a chance to tie the Cards by losing to the Reds on Thursday, dropped a full game behind yesterday by getting blanked, 8 to 0, by Elmer Riddle. Riddle scattered seven hits in winning his ninth game of the year, but was aided by three Brooklyn errors. One of them, recalling the World Series of 1941, came when catcher Mickey Owen missed a third strike in the first inning. Two runs came over before he retrieved the ball.

Gallant Carl Hubbell of the Giants tried to beat the Cards for his fourth win of the year, but instead suffered his second defeat, 5 to 3. Harry Gumbert twirled one-hit ball for the Cards until the seventh when Mel Ott authored his ninth homer of the year with one on.

Streak Broken

Possibly inspired by the rout of the Yanks, Washington came from behind to tie the Chicago White Sox in the ninth, then won in the 11th, 3 to 2, on Jake Early's double and Johnny Sullivan's single. Rookie Guy Curtwright's streak of hitting in 26 consecutive games for the Sox was broken when he went "naught-for-four."

Milo Candini, Washington starter, was saved from his first defeat when singles by Bob Johnson and Early knotted the count at 2-2 in the ninth.

Truet "Rip" Sewell of the Pittsburgh Pirates chalked up his 11th victory against two defeats by outpitching Jack Kraus to beat the Phillies, 2 to 1. The Phils' run came on Conker Triplett's eight-inning homer, one of the five hits Sewell yielded.

Win in 9th

The St. Louis Browns scored four times in the ninth to beat the Athletics for the third straight day, 8 to 7. Everett Pagan, rookie A's pitcher, walked five men to force in two runs, then Vern Stephens singled to win the game.

The Chicago Cubs defeated the Boston Braves, 7 to 1, for the eighth time in a row behind Claude Passeau's four-hit twirling while the veteran Tommy Bridges demonstrated he still has a sharp-breaking curve by striking out 11 in pitching Detroit to an 8 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Expect Record Turf Holiday Week-End

New York, July 3 (AP)—Fire crackers aren't available for this Fourth of July celebration but an estimated quarter-million members of the racing and betting gentry will fire a $10,000,000 salute at the Saturday-Monday turf programs.

Seven tracks in the United States plus Fort Erie, Ontario, not more than a paddock's length from the border near Buffalo, New York, expect 255,700 paying guests on the two days with an estimated betting handle of $9,367,000.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 3 (AP)—That yawning gap at shortstop in the Dodgers' lineup (which Red Barkley may or may not have filled) doesn't even draw a yawn from Aviation Cadet Claude Corbitt, who might have handled the job very well. . . . The only comment an interviewer could get from him was a stereotyped remark that all the clubs were having a hard time finding young fellows to fill positions. . . . But Claude expects to be playing for the Dodgers after the war if it doesn't last too long. "I'm only 27; I am still young and have several good playing years ahead of me," he said. . . . Corbitt is going through the final stage of training at the Columbus, Miss., Army Air Field.

ENCOURAGING, EH?

George Strickler, the National Football league drummer, reports that during the recent meeting at Chicago a gent who frequently had put the touch on Buffalo's Charley Murray for meal money turned up for the first time in two years. . . . He had heard the league had awarded Murray the Buffalo franchise and he war-sed to bargain for a piece of it. . . . "He had $10,000 in his pocket and the unconscious body of Murray on his hands," says George. "And when Murray recovered from the shock, he redoubled his efforts to get their franchise."

SPORTPOURRI

Eddie Arcaro, still under suspension at the horse tracks, keeps in the pink by exercising nags in the early morning hours and keeps out of the red by spending his afternoons at baseball parks instead of those places with mutual windows. . . . The Women's International Bowling Congress, which bought a bomber and "adopted" its crew last spring, now plans to purchase one or more $80,000 ambulance planes during the coming year. . . . Jinx item: The Giants are the only National league club that hasn't been victim of at least two no-hit shutouts since 1900.

Only one against the New Yorkers in the 20th century was tossed by Jimmy Lavender of the Cubs, Aug. 31, 1915. . . . Tom Maher, Jamaica track superintendent, tabs Market Week's 1:38 3/5 final prep for Monday's Massachusetts handicap as the fastest mile workout over his track in 20 years. . . . Dorothy Germain, the Philadelphia girl golfer who reached the semi-finals of the Women's western open, is the daughter of a glue manufacturer. . . . No wonder she stuck around so long.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Nixon Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: "The University of Kentucky, which offered football Wednesday for the duration of the war, is different from a lot of schools. You wouldn't find many colleges complaining about a player shortage if, like UK, they had the striking coal miners of Breathitt and Harlan counties where they could put their fingers on them."

SERVICE DEPT.

Johnny Blood, the famous wandering halfback of the pro football league, has wandered clear to Delhi, India, where he's stationed with the U.S. forces. . . . Pvt. Johnny Greco, who put the Canadian Army into the boxing business, has been shipped off to St. John's, Quebec, to begin his basic training and doesn't expect to do any more punching until after the war. . . . Pvt. Adam Kmak, former White Sox bat boy who is training at Keeler Field, Miss., to become an aerial gunner, says he hopes to shoot for a pro baseball career after the war. . . . Billy Meagher, eldest son of Lieut. Comdr. Jack Meagher, former Auburn grid coach, recently enlisted in the Navy. . . . Jack also has four younger boys at home awaiting their turns to join up. . . . Just Meagher and Meagher of them.

Father And Son On Braves' Roster

Brooklyn, July 3 (AP)—War, like politics, often makes strange bed-fellows.

John Cooney is the 42-year-old utility player with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National league. His 17-year-old son is trying out for a job with the same club.

Many soldiers earn extra pay in the Army by working in motion picture theatres operated by the War department.

Worker-Pitcher

George Barley (above), pitcher for the Buffalo International league baseball club, pitches home games at night and works in the Bell Aircraft Corporation's Buffalo plant during the day. Tuesday night he hurled a full game after an eight-hour stretch at the plant. He plans to spend part of his vacation on the road with the Bisons and to make overnight jumps to Rochester and Toronto.

MORE FISHERMEN

A few more countians are fishing this year than last, according to the records of County Treasurer John Brehm. Last year up to the opening of bass season 771 licenses had been issued while this year the number of permits to the end of June was 786.

The Portuguese man-of-war fish is the only creature not affected by the poisonous sting of the Portuguese man-of-war jellyfish.

EIGHT EVENTS IN TRACK MEET HERE MONDAY

Eight events have been listed for the track meet which will be held Monday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock between flight teams of the 55th College Training Detachment at Gettysburg college in connection with the all-day sports carnival to be held Monday.

The events will include: 440-yard relay; 880-yard relay; one, two and four-mile runs; shot put, broad jump and high jump.

Each flight will be allowed three entries in each event and scoring will be based solely on team performances.

Immediately preceding the meet Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the college, will address the cadets who will mass at the flag pole on Nixon field.

C. E. Bilheimer, head of the department of physical education, sponsors of the meet, has announced that chairs will be available to the public.

GUNDER HAEGG DEFEATS DODDS

Chicago, July 3 (AP)—Sweden's thin man, Gunder Haegg, rested in a hotel room today before taking off for the west coast for another two-mile race with Gil Dodds, who made the great runner exert himself considerably last night to win his second start on American soil.

Haegg posted the third fastest outdoor two-mile ever run in this country in beating the Boston divinity student — competing at this distance for the first time in two years—by 20 yards at Soldier Field. His time was 9:02.8, which was regarded as remarkably fast on a track which he described as soft as a "potato field."

There was a turnout of 12,000 to see Haegg perform—and after the race he was besieged by Swedish admirers who demanded his autograph.

Roy Phillips of Tufts college, Forest EFAPA of Oklahoma Aggies and Jerry Thompson of Texas trailed Dodds and Haegg by 150 yards at the finish of the two-mile run, feature of the Central A.A.U. track program.

Dodds shadowed gaunt Gunder through seven laps of the eight-lap route, literally breathing down his neck and once passing him—on the first turn of the second heat. Twice Dodds challenged for the lead on the back stretch of the final lap, but Haegg pressed down the throttle to finally bolt well ahead and stay there.

Jersey City Recalls 16-Year-Old Star

(By The Associated Press)

Carroll Lockman, 16-year-old outfielder for the Springfield Rifles, is bidding a lusty farewell to the Eastern league.

Last night he was recalled by the Jersey City Giants of the International league, to whom he will report in Newark tomorrow, and contributed generously to a 4-3 Springfield victory over Albany.

Doubling at right and center field for the night, Lockman singled in the ninth inning with two out and came in with the winning run on a two-bagger by first baseman Joe Collins. Lockman also singled in the eighth to help tie the count at 3-3.

Lockman, 17 this month, has hit .331 in 41 games.

Circuit-leader Scranton scored four times on four hits to down Elmira 4-3. Second-position Wilkes-Barre beat Binghamton, 2-1, in 10 innings. Hartford humbled Utica, 4-1, lumping the three winning runs in the fifth inning.

Deny Garden Park Gas For Operation

Camden, N. J., July 3 (AP)—Garden State park's application for gasoline and oil for race track operations was denied yesterday by the Haddonfield rationing board. Park officials said they needed about 20,000 gallons of fuel oil and gasoline to operate various track facilities at the meeting starting next Wednesday.

The track will operate horse-drawn vehicles between the nearest bus stop and the track, a distance of about a mile.

of the hood with the windshield open. We couldn't even use black-out lights because we were in enemy territory. A little farther up the road there was a British gas truck stalled and when I started around, I slipped off the road. I couldn't see a thing so I jumped out and nearly broke my neck. When I stepped off the running board there was a fifteen foot drop and I dropped. The truck had slipped so far then that I couldn't climb in to get my flashlight for fear the extra weight would upset the truck. There was an Ordnance Company bivouacked a mile down the road so I got their heavy six-ton Diamond T to pull me out. I was really behind now and there wasn't a soul from my outfit in miles. I started out again and it stopped raining and the moon came out, making it a swell night for driving. I caught up with another convoy and got stopped in the mountains for two hours more. I ate a pack of 'K' rationals while I waited for them to move.

TITLE HARNESS EVENT ON CARD

Cleveland, July 3 (AP)—Three $1,000 races and a $500 pace for non-winners were scheduled as the supporting card for the $2,612 championship stallion stake headliner today at North Randall's Grand Circuit track.

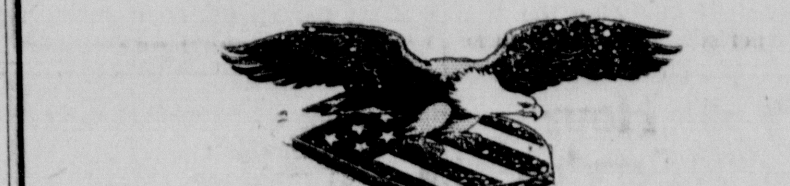

Entries in the trot for stallions include His Excellency a stablemate of Hambletonian favorite Volte Song. The 1:59 1/2 trotter is owned by Bill Strang, Jr., of Brooklyn.

Yesterday's feature, the $4,295.42 American stake for two-year-old trotters, was won by Yankee Maid, a longshot entry owned by A. L. Derby of Wichita, Kan., and driven by veteran Fred Egan. Selka Spencer, who paid $116.20 for $2 at mutuels in winning the first heat, ran tenth the second time out and was badly beaten in the runoff with Yankee Maid.

Selka Spencer's price for the first heat was the longest odds paid in the meeting to date.

A first heat victory in a 2:16 pace gave top money to Moon Flower, owned by Mrs. G. L. La Boyteaux of Perrysburg, O., despite a third place performance in the second and final dash. Bessie Nutonia, an 18 to 1 shot, won the second heat after finishing sixth in the opener.

YORK NEARING THIRD PLACE

(By The Associated Press)

Wilmington's Blue Rocks, who started a road trip early this week with a two-game lead in the Interstate league, were two games behind Hagerstown today.

The Rocks came home last night and dropped an 8-1 decision to the new league leaders despite two doubles and nine singles off Tom Nagle who was aided by good fielding. Ray Minor in his first pitching job for Wilmington was touched for five runs before Tal Abernathy replaced him.

It took the Trenton Packers 12 innings to beat Lancaster, but they did it 9-8 on 14 hits against Gerkin and Bowles. Walsh gave up 15 safeties for Trenton.

Allentown dropped its 38th game of the season, 9-4, Alex Daniels and Bill Schaefer hitting home runs for York, now only a game behind third-place Lancaster.

88 mm. shells and also the strafing planes. I was badly in need of sleep when we finally pushed them out of there.

"The next encounter was at Sedan. We bivouacked in a cork wood forest. We moved at night and as soon as I dug a fox hole I went to bed. Just as it got light I was awakened by machine gun fire and then I heard a plane and then ack ack fire. I tore for my fox hole a hundred feet away and I had clothes and blankets strewn the entire distance. Bullets were flying thick around because bark was flying off the trees all around me. I had my closest call there, a bullet hit in my fox hole four inches above my head. I dug it out and am keeping it for a souvenir.

Snake in Fox Hole

"We were strafed every morning after that but we were prepared for them and had so much fire power going up at them they didn't do a bit of damage. I had a rather funny experience there. They got the range of us somehow with a 210 mm. rifle they used and the first I was able to see the mop-up."

"There were German planes, trucks, tanks and guns lying everywhere. The papers didn't exaggerate when they gave figures on the battle of Tunis. It was all quite an experience and I am happy that I was able to see the mop-up."

An Evening Thought

All cares appear twice as large as they really are, owing to their emptiness and darkness; and so it is with the grace.—Richter.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

NIGHTWORKERS' WIVES
A friendly correspondent writes of wives of men who work at night.

They sit alone the evenings through,
Nowhere to go and naught to do;
By day a silence grave they keep,
To tell their husbands get some sleep.

To put it mildly, 'tis indeed
A topsy-turvy life they lead.

When other couples seek a show,
'Tis off to work their husbands go.

How very strange their lives must be
His breakfast is her time for tea.

When wives are toasting breakfast bread,
Their men are on their way to bed.

What for the wives is midnight grim
Is time for lunch for Jack or Jim.

A woman must be very brave
For such a man to be a slave;

To swear to comfort and delight
A man who changes day to night;

A man who smores from eight to four,
And works the hours he ought to snore!

Yet many men who lead such lives
Are blest with most devoted wives.

GOD IN THE MIDDLE OF THINGS

We are apt to lose faith in the midst of the chaotic times in which we live. In the midst of confusion and despair people often lose their faith. But it must not be forgotten that God is always in the middle of things—"keeping watch above his own."

In Victor Hugo's graphic description of the Battle of Waterloo, as told in his "Les Miserables," he tells that it was God who stepped in and defeated this ambitious man who would rule millions against their will. And it is this same God who will step in and defeat those in this war who defy all decency, and who know only how to degrade and enslave.

In every serious crisis in the history of the world God has stepped in. Read history and be convinced. Read the stories of boys tossed into the sea by the acts of the enemy, of those who have been dangerously wounded in battle, and of those who have been given grave assignments, and you will note how God has stepped into the hearts of all and made them heroes.

God is in the middle of Russia, China, England, and America, in this contest as to whether men shall forever be free or enslaved. Make no mistake about this. No one can take from human beings what they have earned through right of birth itself. It is an inalienable right.

Sooner or later people discover this God, who is forever in the middle of things, and feel his presence through faith—and through something that is inherent in every human being. Often it takes a great crisis, like this tragic world war, to prove to men that God is alive and working through agencies that mean their freedom and happiness.

People who carry God around with them always live purposeful lives. They are the leaders in every forward movement for the betterment of mankind. They become selfless because of the inspiration that service renders.

When discouraged, or during a period of despair, bear in mind that God is ever around, for he is in the middle of things—always at work!

Old Glory is believed to have been first raised at Portsmouth, N.H., on July 4, 1777, where John Paul Jones was preparing to sail on the "Ranger."

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

A driver's nerves may be all on edge without him feeling very keen. In our quest for ways and means of stepping up gasoline mileage it will pay to take a look at the motor thermostat. I'm not referring to the thermostat's ability to open as it should but to its efficiency in closing. If it is sluggish on the second part of its job it will fail to cut out circulation through the radiator when the engine starts to run too cool. Thus you may stop to park and when you start off again with the engine quite cool the thermostat valve may still be partly open when it should be fully closed. Testing the efficiency of this gadget is merely a matter of dunking it alternately in hot and cold water.

Substitutes to the Fore

Now that the tire situation is easing, with synthetic very definitely on the way, many a motorist is beginning to wonder why we are not being informed as to ways and means of keeping our cars going without benefit of gasoline. Europeans have been running on producer gas for years, but on this side of the water you would think no one had ever heard of operating an internal combustion engine on the gas produced from passing steam over a bed of coal, wood or charcoal. It all goes back to the fact that when the war started those who did not realize how vital the automobile had become were bent on putting it in the garage for the duration. This didn't succeed, so we have since been fed meagre quantities of conventional gasoline. But this also has an adverse effect on the progress of the war. Soon we are going from mileage rationing to actual fuel rationing, and when that happens what's wrong with substitutions for gasoline? And why not some new ideas along the lines of fuel adulterants to stretch the miles?

The habit of cleaning off the ignition coil pays an extra dividend in that it suggests checking the high tension connection to make sure it is tight.

If you have a high opening thermostat and have removed it for the summer be sure to install a 160 degree thermostat, otherwise the engine will not run efficiently on cool mornings or whenever being started.

Best Ways To Flush

Several motorists have been asking me for suggestions regarding the process of flushing the engine to keep it clean. My advice is against the policy of using flushing oils as they tend to stay in the engines of some cars to dilute the fresh oil that is added. Also such oils are not solvent enough in their action to be of much use. Most practical plan is to add a pint or two of solvent, such as valve oil, break-in oil or any oil effective in freeing sticky piston rings, a few days before planning to drain off the oil. This will loosen up a lot of sludge and gums which in turn, will come out with the old oil.

There are mechanical pressure flushing systems which are effective in cleaning clogged systems. They simply circulate solvent oils through the oiling system under pressure. Some service men say these systems stir up too much sludge, sending the stuff to points where it may cause trouble. There are arguments pro and con. Used consistently from the time an engine is new such systems will keep an engine clean as a whistle internally.

Note On Conservation

Saving takes on new meaning when a motorist is smart enough to suspect that the ignition trouble he is having may be simply due to a loose connection at the condenser. There may, naturally enough, be series resistance, incorrect capacity or leakage, but check the connections first. Incidentally, a tester should be used for this.

In connection with selection of a battery it is well to remember that if the black box isn't of sufficient capacity for its motor it will never crank fast enough for an efficient start. This complicates matters, involves more choking, more stalling, more delay. Oil is washed from the cylinder walls by the excess of raw gasoline sucked in during the trial and error period. That means more wear, more actual risk of scoring the cylinder walls. The quicker the start the better, excepting for the virtue in a stall or two before actually putting the car into service. A stall allows oil circulation to catch up, eliminating the lag.

Word To The Wise

One of the risks in fooling around with storage batteries is the danger of getting some acid on a tender spot of the body. One of my readers writes to say that recently he let the battery drop into its carrier and was reminded by having some acid get into his eye. The consequences might have been quite serious had a friend not reminded him to wash out the eye thoroughly with warm water and then apply a drop of olive oil. Incidentally, never carry the battery, or take it out of the car with the vent caps removed.

With the passing of months and years millions of tires are rolling on tubes that are getting to be porous. It means that we must be careful to check tire pressures more often, but how many consider this? Before the war no smart owner ever thought of buying a new tire without also buying a new tube, the thought being that the old tube wouldn't maintain pressure sufficiently to safeguard the walls of the new shoe. Remember that in spite of what we are trying to do by way of conserving rubber the average life of a tube is around two years. Don't incidentally, make the mistake of over-inflating the tubes as a convenience. The only real solution is to visit the filling station more often. A help is to have special powder blown into the tubes. This will help check porosity, but it won't make the rubber any younger.

Tells About The Choke

Yet, it would be handy if there were some gadget in the car to blow a whistle or flash a light if the choke happened to stick partially closed. We've had such telltale warning for those afflicted with the mania for driving without releasing the hand brake, and the ammeter serves constantly to tip off the driver to a score of things that may be going wrong with the electrical system. But lacking a choke "signal" should be no deprivation. An overcooked engine always bucks. It is more of a mixed up action, not a pronounced skipping. And of course there will be black smoke from the exhaust.

If you lift the hood some summer morning and find that the ignition parts have become very wet, and you do not succeed in drying them off, try rubbing a little heavy oil over them. The oil breaks up the remaining particles of oil so as to introduce oil resistance. This is particularly effective on the distributor head. Of course wipe off the tube carefully after the engine has warmed up and you have successfully prevented external loss of high tension current.

Airing Their Car Troubles

Q. The engine of my car misses when it becomes warm, but runs perfectly during the warming up period. I have checked valve tappet clearances, and have also replaced the coil. Have you an idea what could cause this? L. S. S.

A. Take a look at the spark plugs. There probably is fused oxide on their insulators. A plug so coated will fire all right when cold but miss when warmed up.

Q. I removed the cylinder head on the theory that there was a gasket leak, but now I have my doubts. Before putting the head back I'd like to be sure there was such leakage, otherwise I'll have to find some other reason for the overheating. I'm enclosing an air mail stamped envelope. J. C. B.

A. You should be able to see evidence of exhaust leaks on the surface of the cylinder head.

Q. The car seems a little sluggish on the pick-up, and I'm not getting too good gas mileage. Idling mixture is well cut down, and the ignition timing is right on the button. Would a tendency toward vapor lock have these effects? F. L. M.

A. I suggest that you look to see for what stroke the accelerating pump plunger arm is set. There are three positions for this on your particular car. Set the arm for the shortest stroke in summer driving.

Q. What is the purpose of the "resonance" chamber in the new muffler I have had installed on my car? S. E. D.

A. This chamber tunes out "period" noises which develop when there are changes in the flow of exhaust gases, as, for instance, when coasting.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him care of The Gettysburg Times and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

ENTERS WALK RACE

Philadelphia, July 3 (AP)—Sune Carlsson, Swedish merchant seaman and teammate of Gunder Haegg, has entered the 20-kilometer walk to be held Sunday under sponsorship of Joseph Vassella post, American Legion.

Director Opposes Water Supply Plan

Philadelphia, July 3 (AP)—The suggestion of Pennsylvania Chief Justice George H. Maxey that Philadelphia seek a new water supply in the Pocono mountains rather than try to keep coal mine silt out of the Schuylkill river does not meet the approval of the city's public works director, John H. Neeson.

Tapping the mountain streams, Neeson said Thursday, would be "10 times more costly" than ridding the river of silt. He added that water from the Poconos, like the Schuylkill water the city now uses, would have to be treated to guard against contamination.

Anti-Strike Law Will Be Enforced

Philadelphia, July 3 (AP)—Attorney General Biddle says the Department of Justice is "very definitely prepared" to enforce the new anti-strike act.

Asked whether the measure would be invoked in the coal mine situation, Biddle said: "Because we have not acted is no reason to say we wouldn't."

He made the statement in an interview while here to address a meeting of U. S. attorneys from eastern states, adding, "the law itself is very clear and the department is familiar with it and prepared to act when the occasion arises."

CRIDER NAMED TO PROBE UNIT BY COMMISSION

Harrisburg, July 3 (AP)—The Pennsylvania legislature turned an inquiring eye today on strip coal mining, municipal authority agencies and crime with the appointment of investigating committees to study each problem.

The committees were named by the joint state government commission, Republican controlled legislative research group, to investigate subjects suggested by the 1943 legislature. Commission officers said any resulting recommendations would be submitted to the 1945 general assembly.

Selected to study strip mining by Commission Chairman Ira T. Fiss, Speaker of the House, were Senators J. Fred Thomas, Mercer county, chairman; M. P. Crowe, Monroe; John J. Haluska, Cambria; G. Harold Watkins, Schuylkill and James A. Geltz, Allegheny; Representatives Edwin C. Ewing, Allegheny; Earl E. Hewitt, Sr., Indiana; Adam T. Bowler, Northumberland; J. H. Wallin, Centre; Andrew Garber, Luzerne; Samuel B. Dennison, Jefferson; Robert J. Cordier, Lackawanna; Harry P. O'Neill, Lackawanna, and Francis E. Pettit, Washington.

Senator Clarence D. Becker, Lebanon, will head the sub-committee selected to review activities of municipal authorities. During the 1943 legislature he was chairman of a special Senate group whose work led to passage of a law requiring authorities to secure approval of the Public Utility commission for proposed purchases of water companies.

Other members of the new committee are Senators John H. Dent, Westmoreland; John F. Cox, Allegheny; Paul M. Crider, Franklin; John G. Snowden, Lycoming and G. Harold Watkins, Schuylkill. House members are Benjamin F. James, Philadelphia; Lloyd H. Wood, Montgomery; G. Edgar Kline, Schuylkill; W. Stuart Helm, Armstrong; Albert L. O'Connor, Cambria; and David H. Weiss, Westmoreland.

The State Penal code and juvenile delinquency will be taken up by Senators John M. Walker, Allegheny, chairman; A. Evans Kephart, Philadelphia; Charles R. Mallory, Blair; John P. Cox, Allegheny, and Reps. Charles H. Brunner, Jr., Montgomery; John H. McKinney, Venango; Herbert P. Sorg, Elk; Rowland B. Mahany, Crawford; Thomas H. Lee, Philadelphia; David M. Boies, Allegheny, and John P. Corrigan, Philadelphia.

Legislative re-apportionment and allocation of state funds to local governments also were recommended for investigation but sub-committees for those studies are yet to be chosen.

Allies Pound Axis From Two Sides

Plane symbols and arrows indicate Allied air raids from two directions on Axis-held territory (shaded area) in Europe. On the north, British bombers struck at Cologne and Hamburg while in the Mediterranean theater American aircraft attacked Sardinia, Sicily, and the toe of Italy.

Purchasers of clothing in Britain have been cut down by $2,400,000,000 in two years of rationing.

The astrolabe, most ancient of all navigation instruments, was used by Columbus.

RECAPPING WON'T WAIT!

Sure, you can have your tires recapped IF you don't wait too long! You see, when you let a tire wear down too thin, it can't be recapped . . . it has to be junked! Don't take chances—let us tell you when your tires should be recapped to give the longest possible mileage. Bring them in now!

Why You Don't Need a Ration Certificate Now . . .

The government has released the ration restriction in order to make it easier for you to get tires recapped—thereby saving them from the scrap heap!

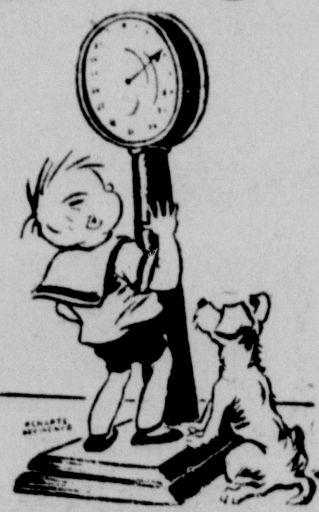

Remember recaps today are made from reclaimed rubber. You must drive under 35 and have tires inflated regularly to get the most mileage out of them!

Want Jeffers To Control Gasoline

Harrisburg, July 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt was urged by secretaries of more than 60 Pennsylvania automobile clubs Wednesday to give Rubber Director William M. Jeffers full control of gasoline production, distribution and rationing.

At concluding sessions of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation Secretaries conference, representatives of organized car owners also approved a resolution demanding an investigation of the fuel shortage, saying the dwindling supply in Pennsylvania "is greatly curtailing the national production of war materials."

Stop Drivers At Delaware Bridge

Camden, N. J., July 3 (AP)—Hundreds of Pennsylvania-to-New Jersey motorists were stopped by Office of Price Administration agents at the Delaware river Friday and only those who could prove they were on essential business were allowed to proceed.

The Camden OPA office said the step, most drastic enforcement of the pleasure driving ban in this area to date, was taken to prevent an Independence Day week-end exodus to the seashore.

The shoreward rush was under way, however, on all types of public transportation. Trains were jammed and many buses had passengers standing in the aisles.

SUNDAY MIDNIGHT SHOW

Within grasp of the happiness she has always craved, a girl faces death for her country's sake, in the dramatic story of "Flight for Freedom."

RKO Radio's new adventure-romance of the air with Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray in the stellar roles. The film will be at the Majestic Monday and Tuesday.

Filmed with the cooperation of the U. S. Navy, the picture reveals the inside story of an elaborate naval secret that could not have been told until after Pearl Harbor. This story is woven into the film's romance in exciting fashion, and makes up the timely climax of the thrill-laden offering.

Miss Russell plays the part of a famous woman flier, and MacMurray that of a noted pilot in love with her.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

Filmed in vivid Technicolor amid the craggy mountains of Utah, the screen version of Mary O'Hara's popular novel, "My Friend Flicka" is a classically simple story.

With Roddy McDowall, Preston Foster and Rita Johnson featured, the 20th Century-Fox picture will open Wednesday night at the Majestic theatre. Capturing the spirit of today's glorious West, the deep and tender love of its women, and the courage of its rugged men, "My Friend Flicka" is filled with swift and tumultuous action.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Lum 'n' Abner stars of "Two Weeks to Live."

The story of "Two Weeks to Live" starring Lum and Abner, which appears at the Majestic Friday and Saturday, has as its rollicking theme the problem of earning $10,000 in two weeks. It all begins when Abner inherits a railroad and envisions Pine Ridge as a flourishing railroad center. To further this plan, Lum and Abner collect the money from the willing residents of Pine Ridge, only to find that the railroad is practically useless.

In this, their third RKO Radio picture, Lum and Abner bring to their radio and screen fans one of the funniest films to come out of Hollywood.

Traitor Spared

On the eve of his scheduled execution, the death sentence of Max Stephan (above), Detroit, Mich., traitor, was commuted by President Roosevelt to life imprisonment. A White House statement said that Stephan was properly convicted of treason, but that his treason was not part of a preconceived plan, hence the death sentence had been too severe.

LOSER TAKE ALL

By Adelaide Hazeltine

Chapter 26

When Sarah refused to help make room for the flood refugees Ann replied, "Then I'll do it myself."

She edged through the crowd, ran up the stairs. She knocked at the first door she reached. It was Mr. Newton's.

"You'll have to move out for tonight," she told him. "We have some flood victims who need your bed. You can go downstairs, sit in the lounge chairs or anything you like. But please hurry."

"Hurry?" he roared pounding his cane on the floor. "Of all the insults! I'll have you know . . ."

Ann didn't wait to hear what he would have her know. She knocked on the next door, gave the surprising news and rushed on to the next and the next. Those who pleaded they couldn't go downstairs she herded into Jerry's small suite on the third floor where they could air their grievances to one another.

Back in the lobby Ann saw one of the victims standing in the center of the floor giving orders to the others. Then she saw it wasn't a victim at all but Jerry Lane. He looked battered and bedraggled.

"The rooms are ready," she told him and the glow in his eyes was worth all the abuse she had suffered at the tongues of the paying guests.

"Coming up!" he replied. A smile of encouragement hovered around his mouth. "You've been great, Ann."

Great! She forgot she was almost as exhausted as the people she was helping upstairs, forgot that her own clothing was soggy with water. She put two and three women and children to a bed, made pallets for others on the floor. One frail little woman lay in solitary luxury on Mrs. Fay's chaise longue. The overflow went to the back wing with three children added to Mary Lee on Ann's bed.

"Where's Dr. Renfrow?" Jerry asked when he met Ann in the hall after all was quiet again at Terrence House. "There's a woman in Mr. Newton's room who needs a doctor."

She went to the lobby desk. Sarah still sat stonily behind it.

"We want Dr. Renfrow," she told her. "Do you know where he is?"

"He's at home," she said sullenly. "Getting some sleep. I just talked to him."

"Didn't you tell him about these people? We need him."

"I told him everything!"

"Then he's coming?"

"No. He's not coming."

Not coming! She couldn't believe that he wouldn't come in an emergency like this. Then she remembered that once before Sarah had made a decision for him and that Ann had regretted not contacting him herself.

"I think I'll call him," she said evenly. After a long time his voice answered.

"Bert? This is Ann. We need you terribly. The flood victims . . ."

"Sorry," he said with a twist of derision to the word, "I'll be over in the morning to see my regular patients if any of them are left." And he hung up.

Stunned, Ann turned away. She wouldn't have believed it if she hadn't heard it herself.

An hour later the defense plant doctor came for a few minutes. He gave special instructions for the few dangerous cases and warned that pneumonia was the greatest worry for all of them.

"I'll send you two or three nurses," he said when he left. "You'll need them by morning when the real effects begin to show. Right now a lot of them are running on nerve."

When the nurses came Jerry insisted that Ann go to bed. "I'll be up all night," he said. "I'll call you if we need you."

Back in her room she began to realize that the doctor was right about her, too. Once she sat down she felt completely exhausted.

She took off her wet clothes, shook her head over the plight of her suit. It would probably never look the same again. Then she chided herself for worrying about a suit when most of the people in Terrence House tonight had lost all their possessions.

She took a hot bath, some aspirin and laid blankets on the floor for a bed. But as she was ready to lie down she noticed a ball of fluff on top of a curtain rod. It was Matilda asleep with her head under her wing.

As Ann watched the bird awoke, cocked an eye at her and sailed down to alight on her shoulder. The case Ann saw had been put into a corner of the room. Evidently Flora had had no luck coaxing the bird to return to it.

Well, Ann would have to put Matilda in it for the night. She could not fly loose in the room.

She brought the cage to the middle of the floor. If she could find that spring it would take only a moment to clean it out and Matilda would be ready to travel.

If they still intended to travel! She had no idea what her plans would be tomorrow.

She felt again behind the flimsy skirt. Suddenly her eyes widened. Her fingers touched a tiny knob and when she pulled the knob she heard the click of a latch.

Then the cage fell apart before her, leaving the base entirely separate from the wire top.

The ringing of the phone interrupted her.

"I've got Jack down here," Mr. Mason's voice said. "The doctor says he's got to get to bed quickly."
